Gardening is a cooperative venture, connecting plants, people and place. It can also be a collaborative effort, involving as many different types of partnerships as there are gardeners.

In his talk, Bill Noble will explore a number of garden collaborations, historic and contemporary, touching on partnerships between engaged amateurs as well as professionals, with special attention to gardens made by women in the Pacific Northwest. Bill Noble is a garden designer and gardener, with an interest in garden history and preservation, based in Norwich, Vermont.

This lecture is the first in a series established by Bobbie's family in recognition of her passion and dedication to preserving the legacy of Elizabeth Lord and Edith Schryver.

Guests are invited to stay for a reception following the lecture. Seating is limited so please RSVP to Pam Wasson at pam@lordschryver.org by November 1.
